ABSTRACT

A method and an apparatus of designing a set of wavelet basis trained to fit a particular problem. The method and apparatus include constructing a neural network of arbitrary complexity using a discrete and finite Radon transform, feeding an input wavelet

5   prototype through the neural network and its backpropagation to produce an output, and modifying the input wavelet prototype using the output.